YALE CENTER FOR BRITISH ART

PROCEDURES AND TERMS

PLACING AN IMAGE REQUEST

The Yale Center for British Art fulfills requests for images of works in its collection as a service to patrons and the scholarly community. The Center generally provides digital images of works in its collection at no charge, whether or not new photography is required. However, the Center reserves the right to charge complex or special photography requests as well as for the production, shipping and handling of physical media such as CDs, DVDs, flash drives, and guide prints.

After we have received and evaluated your request, Imaging Services will contact you regarding the availability, timeline, and costs involved, if any. Your confirmation will be required in order to proceed. You will receive an invoice for prepayment if any charges are due. Connecticut state sales tax will be charged where applicable; any additional shipping charges, customs duties, VAT, or other assessments are your responsibility.

Please note that the Center cannot guarantee the availability of images for every work in our collection, nor guarantee a completion date for any request. Works and images may be unavailable due to condition, location, exhibition, collection priorities, copyright, or other restrictions.

COPYRIGHT AND PERMISSION

The Center makes its photography of works in its collection believed to be in the public domain available without restriction. These images may be used without further application, authorization, or fees due to the Center or to Yale.

However, not every work of art in the Center's collection is in the public domain. Copyright in a work of art itself is distinct from any rights in the photograph/digital image depicting the work (where applicable) and may be held by individuals or entities other than the Center. For example, copyright in a work of art may be held or managed by the artist or the artist's heirs or representative(s), not by the Center. The Center does not grant permission to reproduce, publish or otherwise use copyrighted works. This permission must come from the copyright holder. The Center will make available, upon request, contact details or any other information it may have about rights holders, provided this information is publicly available or we have permission to do so.

In addition, works or images may be protected by rights of publicity or privacy, or have other restrictions imposed by contract or policy. The Center also reserves rights to photography of architecture, events, employees, and guests created or commissioned by Center staff.

While the Center makes every effort to accurately determine the rights status of works and images, this information is provided without any warranty. It is your responsibility to verify or accept any rights information provided as well as to obtain any additional permission or clearances that may be required for works protected by copyright. You are solely responsible for the use of any images provided by the Center and you indemnify and hold the Center harmless against any and all claims arising from the use of images by you or anyone acting on your behalf.

CITATION AND CREDIT

The Center provides information for the proper citation of works in its collection according to accepted standards. We encourage users to properly identify works from our collection and to provide an image credit to the Yale Center for British Art.

Apart from the above, you may not suggest or imply the Center's endorsement of your publication or project, nor use the Center or Yale University's trademarks without permission.

If a work or a photographic image is still protected by copyright, you must cite the relevant copyright information when using the image and comply with all other terms or restrictions that may be applicable to that material.

THE YALE CENTER FOR BRITISH ART MAKES NO WARRANTIES OR REPRESENTATIONS, EXPRESSED OR IMPLIED, AS TO ANY MATTER, INCLUDING, WITHOUT LIMITATION, AVAILABILITY OF IMAGES, WARRANTIES OF MERCHANTABILITY, FITNESS OF IMAGES FOR A PARTICULAR USE, NON-INFRINGEMENT, ABSENCE OF ERROR, OR WITH RESPECT TO COPYRIGHT, TRADEMARK OR RIGHTS OF PUBLICITY OR PRIVACY IN ANY IMAGE.
